

ABSTRACT

A printer configured to receive documents to be printed from a computer system, the printer including an interface, and being configured to: receive, via the interface, input from a user indicative of a print command; send, from the printer to the computer system, a print request; receive, from the computer system and in response to the print request, a document to be printed; and print the document.